

Biography

Gésine Hackenberg, born 1972 in Germany, lives and works as a contemporary jewellery artist in Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

Trained as a goldsmith in Germany, she graduated in 2001 from the Gerrit Rietveld Academie in Amsterdam (NL). In 2013, she earned her MA from the PXL-MAD School of Arts in Hasselt (BE), where she also served as a tutor from 2011 to 2019. Since 2008, she has been teaching technical metalsmithing at the Vakschool Edelsmeden in Amsterdam. Hackenberg is regularly invited to give lectures, conduct workshops, and offer student tutorials worldwide.

In her artistic career, Gésine Hackenberg has been the recipient of several grants and public commissions. She has actively exhibited her work in solo and groups exhibitions in galleries and museums worldwide since 2001. Her work is published in numerous international publications and included in collections such as the Museum of Art and Design (MAD) in New York (USA), the Victoria and Albert Museum (V&A) in London (UK), and Die Neue Sammlung at the Pinakothek der Moderne in Munich (DE).